Crvena jabuka

Crvena jabuka – Iako je grupa Crvena jabuka formirana tek 1985 godine njena predistorija počinje četiri godine ranije kada Zlatko Arslanagić (rođen 1964) i Dražen Ričl - Para (rođen 1962) osnivaju sastav Ozbiljno pitanje. A kada je Ričl 1985. godine napustio grupu Elvis J. Kurtovich logičan slijed stvari je bio da se ponovo udruži sa Arslanagićem.

Početkom 1986. godine pojavio se njihov debi album. To je tek bio šok. Iz izloga nas je promatrala obnažena ženska pozadina oslikana crvenom jabukom. Omot je potpisao Davor Papić, a "južni dio leđa" je u te svrhe "posudila" izvjesna Slađana koja je prvo insistirala na tome da ostane anonimna, a kako je popularnost ploče rasla sve češće je sama isticala svoju ulogu. U pjesmi "Bivše djevojčice, bivši dječaci" iz velikog hita grupe The Who, pjesme "My Generation", posuđeni su stihovi "volio bih umrijet prije nego ostarim". Nisu ni slutili kako će to zlokobno proročanstvo biti. Tokom ljeta su vježbali za turneju i pripremali pjesme za novi album. Turneja je trebala početi koncertom u Mostaru 18. septembra 1986. godine. Na žalost dio ekipe nikada nije ni stigao do Mostara. Doživjeli su saobraćajnu nesreću. Aljoša Buha je na licu mjesta podlegao povredama. Zlaja je povrijeđen. Dražen je u kritičnom stanju. Prebacuju ga na VMA u Beograd. Nakon dvanaest dana, 01. oktobra stiže vijest da je i on podlegao. Čini se da je priča o Crvenoj jabuci okončana.

Tako su razmišljali i u grupi. Na nagovor disko kuće ipak pristanu da snime već pripremljene pjesme za drugi album. Silom prilika zapjeva Dražen Žerić. Ploča Za sve ove godine pojavila se u proljeće 1987. godine. Ploča je posvećena preminulim članovima grupe i nije bilo ni intervjua, ni promocija, ni turneje. Nenadani uspjeh ovog albuma ipak ih je natjerao da još jednom razmisle o reaktiviranju grupe. Kao trio objavljuju album Sanjati u proljeće 1988. godine. Uslijedila je turneja na kojoj se grupi priključuju basista Branko Sauka (ex Gino banana) i klavijaturista Zlatko Volarević Dilajla (ex Đavoli). Na albumu Tamo gdje ljubav počinje, objavljenom naredne godine, oni su punopravni članovi grupe. Jednako kao i Nikša Bratoš.

Na turneji koja je uslijedila gitarista je umjesto Nikše Bratoša postao, kao punopravan član, Igor Ivanović ranije vođa grupe Uhuhu. Upravo uspijeh turneje navede ih da objave snimke sa tih koncerata. To im daje priliku da diskografski predahnu jer u proljeće 1990. godine izlazi dvostruki koncertni album Uzmi me kad hoćeš ti.

Nakon ovog albuma u grupi dolazi do nesuglasica. Mijenjaju se članovi. Novi gitarista je Zoran Šerbedžija. Dolazi do sukoba na relaciji Arslanagić – Žerić. Govori se da će doći do promjene pjevača. Ipak i naredni album otpjeva Žera. Album se zove Nekako s proljeća, a naslovnu pjesmu je pjevao u duetu sa Kemalom Montenom i to postane jedan od njihovih najvećih hitova.

Tokom rata Zlaja odlazi za London, pa za Kanadu. Žera se skrasio u Zagrebu. Ipak, 1995. godine je odlučio da sam iskoristi popularnost Crvene jabuke. Zajedno sa Darkom Jelčićem i Nikšom Bratošem obnavlja grupu. Na scenu su se vratili albumima U tvojim očima (1996.), Svijet je lopta šarena (1997.), I Sve što sanjam (2000.). Na disku Tvojim željama vođen (2002.) devet od jedanaest pjesama je napisao Dino Šaran. On je bio većinski autor i albuma Oprosti što je ljubavna (2005.). Na albumu Duša Sarajeva (2007.) je njihov nekadašnji gitarista Igor Ivanović bio aranžer i autor.

Veliki povratak je uslijedio početkom 2009. godine sa albumom Volim te. Regionalni hit bila je pjesma "Jazz.Ba". Uslijedili su albumi Za tvoju ljubav (2011.) i Nek' bude ljubav (2013.). Žera je sa Narcisom Vučinom snimio album Ručni rad Sarajevo. Početkom ljeta 2016. godine izašao je album Crvena jabuka 2016 (radni naziv Berba čaja u Šri Lanki). Nakon 2018. godine u grupi je od originalne postave ostao samo Dražen Žerić i ta verzija Crvene jabuke objavila je albume Nostalgija, Tvrđava i polukompilaciju polu studijski album Sarajevo 1985 – 2020.

Crvena jabuka – Although the group Crvena jabuka was formed in 1985, its history began four years earlier, when Zlatko Arslanagić (born in 1964) and Dražen Ričl - Para (born in 1962) founded the group Ozbiljno pitanje (Serious Question). And when Ričl left the Elvis J. Kurtovich band in 1985, the logical sequence of events was to reunite with Arslanagić.

At the beginning of 1986, their debut album appeared. That was a shock. A naked female backside painted with a red apple stared at passers-by from shop windows. The cover was designed by Davor Papić, and the "southern part of the back" was "lent" for the purpose by a certain Slađana, who at first insisted on remaining anonymous, though as the album's popularity grew, she took to increasingly emphasizing her role. In the song "Bivše djevojčice, bivši dječaci" ("Former Girls, Former Boys"), the lines "I'd like to die before I grow old" are borrowed from the great hit "My Generation" by The Who. They had no idea how ominous that prophecy would be. During the summer they rehearsed for their tour and prepared songs for their new album. The tour was supposed to start with a concert in Mostar on September 18, 1986. Unfortunately, part of the team never even reached Mostar. They were in a car crash. Aljoša Buha succumbed to his injuries on the spot. Zlaja is injured. Dražen was in critical condition, and was transferred to the Military Medical Academy in Belgrade. After twelve days, on October 1, news arrives that he had died of his injuries. It seemed that the story of Crvena jabuka was over.

The group thought so as well. At the persuasion of their label, they nevertheless agreed to record the songs that had already been prepared for the second album. Dražen Žerić sings by force of circumstances. The record Za sve ove godine (For All of these Years) appeared in the spring of 1987. The record is dedicated to the deceased members of the group and there were no interviews, no promotions, no tour. The sudden success of this album, however, made them think again about reviving the band. As a trio, they released the album Sanjati (To Dream) in the spring of 1988. This was followed by a tour where bassist Branko Sauka (formerly of Gino banana) and keyboardist Zlatko Volarević Dilajla (formerly with Đavoli) joined the group. On the album Tamo gdje ljubav počinje (There Where Love Begins), released the following year, they became full-fledged members of the group, as did Nikša Bratoš.

On the tour that followed, Igor Ivanović, formerly the leader of the group Uhuhu, replaced Nikša Bratoš on guitar, becoming a permanent member. It was the success of the tour that led them to release recordings from those concerts. This gave them the opportunity to take a break, because in the spring of 1990, the double concert album Uzmi me kad hoćeš ti (Take Me When You Want Me) was released.

After this album, cracks begin to appear within the group. The members changed. Zoran Šerbedžija became the new guitarist. There was a conflict between Arslanagić and Žerić. It as rumoured that the band would change singers. Nevertheless, Žera did sing on the next album. The album was titled, Nekako s proljeća (Somehow from Spring), and he sang the title song in a duet with Kemal Monteno, with the song becoming one of their biggest hits.

During the war, Zlaja went to London, and then on to Canada. Žera settled in Zagreb. Nevertheless, in 1995, he decided to take advantage of the popularity of Crvena jabuka himself. Together with Darko Jelčić and Nikša Bratoš, he revived the group. They returned to the scene with the albums U tvojim očima (In Your Eyes) (1996), Svijet je lopta šarena (The World is a Multicolored Ball) (1997), and Sve što sanjam (Everything I Dream) (2000). On the CD Tvojim željama vođen (Guided by Your Wishes) (2002), nine out of eleven songs were written by Dino Šaran. He was also the author of the majority of the album Oprosti što je ljubavna (Sorry for being Romantic) (2005). On the album Duša Sarajeva (Soul of Sarajevo) (2007), their former guitarist Igor Ivanović was the arranger and author.

A big comeback ensued in early 2009 with the album Volim te (I Love You). The song "Jazz.Ba" was a regional hit. The albums Za tvoju ljubav (For your Love) (2011) and Nek' bude ljubav (Let there be Love) (2013) followed. Žera recorded the album Ručni rad Sarajevo (Handmade in Sarajevo) with Narcis Vučina. At the beginning of the summer of 2016, the album Crvena jabuka 2016 (working title "Berba čaja u Šri Lanki"/"Tea Hervesting in Sri Lanka")) was released. After 2018, from the original lineup only Dražen Žerić remained in the group, and that version of Crvene jabuka released the albums Nostalgija, Tvrđava (Fortress) and the semi-compilation semi-studio album Sarajevo 1985 - 2020.
