Pop rock Valentino, Bolero...

Valentino

Grupu Valentino je 1982. godine osnovao gitarista i autor Zijo Rizvanbegović. Već tada je znao kakvu muziku želi stvarati, ali je dosta dugo tragao za muzičkim istomišljenicima. Okosnicu grupe, pored Zije, činili su tada basista Emir Čolaković Emčika, bubnjar Dubravko Smolčić, klavijaturista Igor Tajemnica i pjevač Suad Jakirlić Jaka. Kako je Zijo imao već gotove pjesme ubrzo ulaze u studio i rade debi album ValentiNo 1 koji se pojavio početkom 1984. godine. Najveći hit sa njega bila je pjesma "Volim te još" u kojoj je karakteristični uvod na bas gitari odsvirao Goran Bregović, a pjevala je, uz Jaku, Amila Sulejmanović.

Već na narednoj ploči dolazi do značajnih promjena. Pjesme su više okrenute tradicionalnom zvuku sarajevske pop rock škole. Iz sastava Bonton baja u grupu dolaze bubnjar Ademir Volić Kufi i gitarista Nikša Bratoš. Bratoš postaje sve značajniji u grupi pa on i producira njihov treći, komercijalno najuspješniji album iz 1987. godine. Na njemu je veliki hit "Oka tvoja dva". Nakon trijumfalne turneje napušta ih Bratoš koji prelazi u Crvenu jabuku. Jakirlić odlazi u vojsku i povlači se sa scene i posvećuje poslu asistenta na mašinskom fakultetu u Sarajevu.

Rizvanbegović angažuje mladog pjevača iz Mostara Gorana Prusinu. Sa njim su uradili još dva albuma. Novi gitarista postao je Zoran Šerbedžija, a klavijaturista Samir Šestan. Posljednji prijeratni album Ponekad noću dok grad spava pojavljuje se početkom 1990. Na "Mesamu" 1991. godine su nastupali sa pjesmom "Kada struje nestane". Ona je trebalo da najavi novi album ali je rat osujetio te planove. Prusina je u Mostaru, a Zijo odlazi za Visoko. Tamo je napravio patriotsku pjesmu "Bila kuća u centru grada". Iako je refren pjesme poručivao "Ja iz svoje Bosne ne idem" ubrzo se obreo u Njemačkoj. Tamo je 1996. godine objavio album Moja kuća putujuća na kojem sam pjeva.

Kada je vidio da je grupa Agrameri sa obradom njegove pjesme "Oka tvoja dva" postigla veliki uspjeh, to mu je bio znak da obnovi Valentino. Krajem 2001. godine pojavio se i album Sve su se moje cure udale. Na njemu su ponovljene i neke pjesme sa albuma Moja kuća putuje. Album ValentiNo 7 je izašao 2006. godine a nakon njega koncertni "Samo sklopi okice" iz 2011. godine. Krajem 2014. godine objavio je album Hit do hita sa 16 ponovo snimljenih starih pjesama.

Bolero

Bolero – Sredinom osamdesetih godina Livnjak Mišo Bartulica studirao je u Sarajevu i formirao grupu Bolero. Za pjevača je doveo Mileta Anđelića koji je imao iskustvo jer je u grupi Zov zamjenio Harija Varešanovića. Pored njih u grupi su bili Mustafa Ćizmić, Zoran Grabovac i Nele Hadžić. Debi album Na kraju slavlja (1986.) je imao nekoliko hitova ("Galebovi", "Dajana", "Na kraju slavlja", "Društvo te čeka"), ali se pojavio u vrijeme najveće ekspanzije novih bendova na sarajevskoj sceni tako da nisu mogli doći do izražaja.

Ipak sa tim materijalom su skrenuli pažnju na sebe, te narednu ploču "O Jesenjinu" (1988.) pripremaju u znatno povoljnijim uslovima. Mnogo više se polaže na marketinšku stranu posla, a ploča je koncipirana kao svojevrsni homage Jesenjinu. U pjesmama su ili korišteni Jesenjinovi stihovi, ili su njegove pjesme bile inspiracija Bartulici za svoje radove. Bile su tu "Krčmarska Moskva", "Koščate ruke", "Sviri harmoniko", "O Jesenjinu", obrađena je revolucionarna "Konjuh planinom", a ubjedljivo najveći hit bila je pjesma "Jelena". Na jednoj od pjesama gostovao je Rade Šerbedžija. Ubrzo po izlasku tog albuma, dolazi do trzavica i na turneju kreću sa novim pjevačem Borom Kolakom, do tada poznatim uglavnom kao disk džokej u sarajevskim diskotekama. Turneja prolazi neslavno, a Mišo Bartulica se, u godinama koje su uslijedile, sa promjenjivim uspjehom bavio ugostiteljstvom.

Na scenu se vraća 2005. godine solističkim albumom Ludnik koji iako zanimljiv nije bio na nivou ostvarenja grupe Bolero. Krajem 2011. godine objavili su singl "Dispertango" i to ponovo sa Šerbedžijom, a onda su ga dvije godine kasnije malo doradili sve najavljujući treći album koji se još nije pojavio. Jedno vrijeme su nastupali pod imenom Bolero Reunion. Nakon toga Mustafa Čizmić se odvojio i nastavio izvoditi pjesme pod firmom Čizma i proleteri, a Bartulica je nastavio sa vlastitom postavom. Bubnjar Zoran Grabovac, preminuo je prvog dana 2013. godine u Pragu.

Uhuhu

Uhuhu – Grupa koju je gitarista Igor Ivanović osnovao kada je napustio grupu Gino banana, a još se nije priključio Crvenoj jabuci. Uz njega su u grupi bili Šeki Gayton, nekadašnji bubnjar Zabranjenog pušenja, basista Hadžija i gitarista Žbrljica. Igor je pokazao kako ima autorskog potencijala i 1988.godine je bio autorski prisutan i na aktuelnom albumu Zdravka Čolića sa pjesmom "Samo ona zna". Sa grupom Uhuhu snimio je samo jedan album na kojem se našla prelijepa balada "Znaš da nekad mislim na tebe". Već 1989. godine Igor se priključio Crvenoj jabuci i Uhuhu prestaje sa radom.

Maratonci

Maratonci – Grupu su sredinom osamdesetih osnovali Neven Đokić, Velibor Čolović, Saša Strunjaš i Damir Misirlić. Svi se iza sebe imali već iskustvo, manje ili više u poznatim sarajevskim bendovima. Objavili su dva albuma kao Maratonci i jedan kao Neven i Maratonci.

Barska mušica

Barska mušica – Grupa je nastala kada su se 1990 godine oko ovog projekta okupili Velibor Čolović Šeki, bubnjar iz Breze koji je do tada radio sa Maratoncima, basista Mustafa Kurtalić, Boro Kolak koji je prije rada sa Barskom mušicom kratko vrijeme pjevao u Boleru, gitarista Saša Strunjaš koji je radio sa grupom Elvis J. Kurtovich, te Vlado Džihan koji je svirao klavijature u Zabranjenom pušenju. Bio je to pokušaj stvaranja "super grupe" i njihov debi album Priče sa šanka koji se pojavio u jesen iste godine bio je dosta zapažen.

Soko

Soko – Grupa koju je okupio početkom devedesetih studijski muzičar i trombonista Slobodan Sokolović. Prije toga on je gostovao na mnogim znanim albumima domaće scene. Na ovom projektu on je i pjevao, a imali su i jedan lokalni hit, pjesmu "Lejla", objavljen na njihovom jedinom albumu Soko iz 1987. godine. Uz njega su u grupi svirali i pjevali njegov brat Jasmin Sokolović, Zoran Šerbedžija, Mirko Manojlov i Vlado Đihan.

The group Valentino was founded in 1982 by guitarist and songwriter Zijo Rizvanbegović. Even then, he knew what kind of music he wanted to create, but he searched for like-minded musicians for a long time. The backbone of the group, in addition to Zijo, was bassist Emir Čolaković Emčika, drummer Dubravko Smolčić, keyboardist Igor Tajemnica, and singer Suad Jakirlić Jaka. Since Zijo had already prepared the songs, they soon entered the studio and recorded their debut album ValentiNo 1, which appeared in early 1984. The greatest hit from it was the song "Volim te još" ("I Still Love You"), in which Goran Bregović played the characteristic intro on the bass guitar, and Amila Sulejmanović sang along with Jaka.

Already on the next album there were significant changes. The songs were more oriented towards the traditional sound of the Sarajevo pop-rock school. Drummer Ademir Volić Kufi and guitarist Nikša Bratoš move from Bonton baja. Bratoš became more and more important in the group, and he produced their third, most commercially successful album in 1987. It contains the big hit "Oka tvoja dva" ("Your Two Eyes"). After the triumphant tour, Bratoš left and moved to Crvena jabuka. Jakirlić went to do his army service and retired from the scene, devoting himself to a job as an assistant at the Faculty of Mechanical Engineering in Sarajevo.

Rizvanbegović hired Goran Prusina, a young singer from Mostar. They recorded two more albums with him. The new guitarist was Zoran Šerbedžija, and the keyboard player was Samir Šestan. The last pre-war album Ponekad noću dok grad spava (Sometimes at Night While the City is Sleeping) appeared in early 1990. In 1991, they performed at "Mesam" with the song "Kada struje nestane" ("When the Power Goes Out"). It was supposed to announce a new album, but the war thwarted those plans. Prusina was in Mostar, and Zijo left for Visoko. There he composed the patriotic song "Bila kuća u centra grada" ("There was a House in the Cener of Town"). Although the chorus of the song said "I'm not leaving my Bosnia", he soon moved to Germany. There, in 1996, he released the album Moja kuća putujuća (My Travelling House) on which he himself sings.

When he saw the group Agrameri achieving great success with the cover of his song "Oka tvoja dva", this prompted him to revive Valentino. At the end of 2001, the album Sve su se moje cure udale (All My Girls Got Married) appeared. Some songs from the album Moja kuća putuje reappeared on it. The album ValentiNo 7 was released in 2006, followed by the concert "Samo sklopi okice" ("Just Close your Eyes") in 2011. At the end of 2014, he released the album Hit do hita (From Hit to Hit) with 16 re-recorded old songs.

Bolero – In the mid-eighties, Mišo Bartulica from Livno studied in Sarajevo and formed the group Bolero. He brought in Mile Anđelić as lead singer, who had experience because he had replaced Hari Varešanović in the group Zov. Aside from them, the group included Mustafa Ćizmić, Zoran Grabovac and Nele Hadžić. The debut album Na kraju slavlja (At the end of the Celebration) (1986) had several hits ("Galebovi" (Seagulls), "Dajana", "Na kraju slavlja", "Društvo te čeka" (Society is Waiting), but it appeared at the time of the greatest expansion of new bands on the Sarajevo scene, so they did not manage to garner very much attention.

Even so, with those songs, they drew attention, and they were preparing their next record O Jesenjinu (1988) in much more favourable conditions. Much more attention was paid to the marketing side of the job, and the record was conceived as a kind of homage to Yesenin. In the songs, Yesenin's verses were used, and his poems provided inspiration for Bartulica. These included "Krčmarska Moskva" (The Moscow Inn), "Koščate ruke" (Bony Hands), "Sviri harmoniko" (Play the Harmonica), "O Jesenjinu", a cover of the revolutionary "Konjuh Planinom", and by far the biggest hit "Jelena". Rade Šerbedžija made a guest appearance on one of the songs. Shortly after the release of that album, there was some friction, and they went on tour with the new singer Boro Kolak, until then known mainly as a DJ in Sarajevo. The tour was a flop, and Mišo Bartulica, in the years that followed, worked in the hospitality industry with variable success.

He returned to the scene in 2005 with the solo album Ludnik (Madman), which, although interesting, was not at the level of the achievements of Bolero. At the end of 2011, they released the single "Dispertango", once again with Šerbedžija, and then two years later they improved it by announcing a third album, which has note yet appeared. For some time they performed under the name Bolero Reunion. After that, Mustafa Čizmić left and continued performing songs under the name Čizma i proleteri, while Bartulica continued with his own lineup. Drummer Zoran Grabovac died on the first day of 2013 in Prague.

Uhuhu was a band formed by the guitarist Igor Ivanović after he left the band Gino banana, and before he joined Crvena jabuka (Red Apple). Other band members included Šeki Gayton, the former drummer of Zabranjeno pušenje (No Smoking), bassist Hadžija and guitarist Žbrljica. Igor showed that he had songwriting potential, penning the song "Samo ona zna" (Only she knows) on Zdravko Čolić's 1988 album. He recorded only one album with the band Uhuhu, which included ballad, "Znaš da nekad mislim na tebe" (You know that I sometimes think of you). By 1989, Igor had joined Crvena jabuka (Red Apple), ending Uhuhu's time as a band.

The band Maratonci (The Marathon Runners) was formed by Neven Đokić, Velibor Čolović, Saša Strunjaš, and Damir Misirlić in the mid-80s. They all had previous experience in known Sarajevo bands. They released two albums as Maratonci, and one album under the name Neven i maratonci (Neven and the Marathon Runners).

Barska mušica (The Pond Fly) formed in 1990 when Velibor Čolović Šeki, a drummer from Breza who had previously worked with Maratonci (The Marathon Runners), bassist Mustafa Kurtalić, Boro Kolak, who sang for a short time in Bolero before working with Barska mušica, guitarist Saša Strunjaš, who worked with the band Elvis J. Kurtovich, and Vlado Džihan, who played keyboards in Zabranjeno pušenje (No Smoking), came together for this project. It was an attempt to create a "super group" and their debut album Priče sa šanka (Stories from the bar) which was released in the fall of the same year, was widely noticed.

Soko (Falcon) – The band was brought together in the early 90s by studio musician and trombonist Slobodan Sokolović. He had previously been a guest on many well-known albums. He also sang in this band, and they had a local hit "Lejla" released on their only album titled Soko, in 1987. His brother Jasmin Sokolović, Zoran Šerbedžija, Mirko Manojlov, and Vlado Đihan also played and sung in the band.