Vajta

Vajta – Tokom osamdesetih uspješnu karijeru nastavio je i Seid Memić Vajta. Već album Vajta 2 iz 1980. godine donosi pregršt novih hitova. Naredne godine učestvuje na Pjesmi Evrovizije sa pjesmom "Lejla". To je vrhunac njegove karijere, a "Lejla" je objavljena na albumu Vajta 3 uz ostale hitove "Čovjek bez problema", "Foto model" i "Mala garava". Naredni albumi nisu bili toliko popularni. Tek povremeno bljesne neki hit kao "Metkovići", "Azra", "Sretne ljubavi ne postoje" i "Kad bulbuli pjevaju".

Krajem 1991. godine konačno je dobio stan od tridesetak kvadrata od opštine Travnik i posvetio se radu na novoj ploči koja je trebala da ga na pravi način vrati na scenu. Ploča se zvala Kupi mi tajo harmoniku i naslovna pjesma je imala sve što je potrebno za hit. Na žalost, album je izašao u projeće 1992. godine u samo predvečerje rata i u vrijeme kada nikome više nije bilo do muzike. Naredni album Od Kulina Bana do Vajtinih dana objavio je tek po završetku rata 1996. godine. Na njemu su stari hitovi ali i posve nove pjesme. Vajta se 2006. godine priključio obnovljenoj Teškoj industriji. Sa njima je snimio album Kantina i ponovo ih napustio 2009. godine.

Henda

Henda Mugdim Avdić – Mugdim Avdić poznatiji kao Henda karijeru je počeo kao košarkaš. Smatran je jednim od najvećih talenata bosanskohercegovačke košarke. Prvi dodiri sa muzikom vezani su mu za harmoniku. Njegovi ukućani su htjeli da uči svirati harmoniku, ali njega to nije posebno privlačilo. Više ga je zanimala neka druga vrsta muzike. Tada nastaju njegove prve pjesme, a 1981. objavljuje i prvi singl "I dok predajem se tebi".

Pjesma je polučila primjetan uspijeh i to mu je obezbjedilo i snimanje prvog albuma (Henda) koji je skrenuo pažnju na njega. Već sa narednom pločom Henda II iz 1983. godine pokazuje da nije baš siguran kojim će se pravcem dalje kretati i čini se da je to kraj karijere. Ipak godinu dana kasnije napravio je treći album. U jednoj pjesmi je iskoristio frazu iz čuvene narodne pjesme "Gdje si dušo, gdje si rano" i sa njom je imao najveći hit karijere. Međutim nije iskoristio ovu novu popularnost i umjesto da se bavi muzikom on odlazi u Ameriku gdje zarađuje za život vozeći kamione, takozvane "drumske krstarice".

Četvrti album mu se pojavio tek 1988. godine. Ponudio je nove hitove "Donna", "Summertime", "Vanja", a u promotivnoj kampanji Henda predstavlja marionetu sa njegovim likom. Na petom albumu «Sjećanja» 1990. obnavlja pjesmu "I dok predajem se tebi". U to vrijeme sve više radi kao dizajner. Radi omote za albume Jasne Gospić, Milića Vukašinovića i grupe Regina. Album Moja prva ljubavi je izašao u proljeće 1992. godine. Spot za album je radio u Sjevernoj Africi, promociju zamislio vrlo ambiciozno, ali mu je rat osujetio sve planove.

Početak rata zatiče ga na Dobrinji gdje nastaje ciklus njegovih patriotskih pjesama koji je objavljen na albumu Zaboravljeni grad 1993. godine. Pratile su ga video kaseta i knjiga. Kompletan materijal Henda iznosi iz Sarajeva trčeći preko piste sa našom prvom Evrovizijskom ekipom. Pjesma "Sviraj mi sviraj brate" stiže ubrzo i do MTV-a. Tada su nastale i "Raskrsnice Sarajeva", "Ratnici sa Dobrinje", "Sarajevska raja" i projekat Zaboravljeni grad postaje važan dokument jednog vremena. Henda u međuvremenu nastupa po inostranstvu u klubovima bosanskih izbjeglica, a po završetku rata vraća se u Sarajevo.

Album Umoran od snova izašao je tek u jesen 2001. godine i to je njegovo najzrelije ostvarenje. Početkom 2006. godine objavljuje multimedijalni projekat "Rođen na Bistriku" sa najvećim hitovima, raritetnim snimcima i zbirkom spotova. Posljednje izdanje mu je album Gdje si dušo, gdje si rano iz 2007. godine. U etno maniru je obradio svoje stare pjesme, a nova je tema "Aisha", prepjev velikog hita Cheba Khaleda. Nakon tog izdanja se povukao sa scene.

ROCK EX YU CENTAR SARAJEVO

Vajta – During the eighties, Seid Memić Vajta continued his successful career. The album Vajta 2 from 1980 contained a handful of new hit songs. The following year he participated in the Eurovision Song Contest with the song "Lejla". Marking the peak of his career, "Lejla" was released on the album Vajta 3 alongside other hits such as "Čovjek bez problema", ("Man without Problems") "Foto model", and "Mala garava" ("Small car"). Subsequent albums, although coming out on a regular basiss, were not as popular. Only occasionally did a hit such as "Metković", "Azra", "Sretne ljubavi ne postoje" ("Happy Lovers Don't Exist") or "Kad bulbuli pjevaju" ("When the Nightingales Sing") appear.

Towards the of 1991, the municipality of Travnik awarded him with a flat of some thirty square metres, and he devoted himself to work on a new album that was supposed to mark his comeback. The album was called Kupi mi tajo harmoniku (Buy me that Harmonika) and its title track had all the ingredients of a hit song hit. Unfortunately, the album was released in the spring of 1992 on the eve of the war, at a time when nobody cared about music. The following album Od Kulina Bana do Vajtinih dana (From Kulin Ban to Vajta's Days) was released in 1996, after the war ended. It contained old hits and some completely new songs. In 2006, Vajta joined the reunited Teška industrija. He recorded the album Kantina with them, and left the band once again in 2009.

Mugdim Avdić, better known as Henda, started his career as a basketball player. He was considered one of the greatest talents of Bosnian basketball. His first contact with music was through the accordion. His family wanted him to learn to play the accordion, but he was not particularly attracted to it. He was more interested in other kinds of music. That's when his first songs were written, and in 1981 he released his first single with the song "I dok predajem se tebi" ("And as I Surrender to You").

The song was a notable success, and this secured the recording of his first album, Henda, which garnered considerable attention. Already through his next record Henda II in 1983, it was clear that he was not quite sure which direction he would move in, and it seemed that this was the end of his career. However, a year later he recorded a third album. In one song, he used a phrase from the famous folk song "Gdje si dušo, gdje si rano" ("Where are you Dear, Where are you Early") and it became the biggest hit of his career. However, he did not take advantage of this new popularity and instead of playing music, he went to America, where he earned a living as a truck driver.

His fourth album did not appear until 1988. He recorded new hits, including "Donna", "Summertime", and "Vanja", and the promotional campaign included a marionette with his likeness. On the fifth album Sjećanja (Memories) in 1990, he covered his song "I dok predajem se tebi". During that time, he was concentrating on his work as a designer. He produced album covers for Jasna Gospić, Milić Vukašinović, and the group Regina. The album Moja prva ljubav (My First Love) was released in the spring of 1992. He made a music video for the album in North Africa and had very ambitious plans for it, but the war thwarted his plans.

He was in Dobrinja at beginning of the war, and this is where his cycle of patriotic songs was created, which were released on the album Zaboravljeni grad (Forgotten City) in 1993. It was accompanied by a videotape and a book. Henda took all of the material out of Sarajevo running across the runway at the airport with BiH's first Eurovision team. The song "Sviraj mi sviraj brate" ("Play me, Play Brother") would soon appear on MTV. It was then that "Raskrsnice Sarajeva" ("Sarajevo Crossroads"), "Ratnici sa Dobrinje" ("Warriors from Dobrinja"), "Sarajevska raja" ("Sarajevo Crew") were created, and the Zaboravljeni grad project became an important document of the time. In the meantime, Henda performed abroad in Bosnian refugee clubs, and after the end of the war, he returned to Sarajevo.

The album Umoran od snova (Tired of Dreams) was released only in the autumn of 2001, and it marks his most mature achievement. At the beginning of 2006, he published the multimedia project "Rođen na Bistriku" ("Born in Bistrik") containing his greatest hits, rare recordings, and a collection of music videos. His last release was the album Gdje si dušo, gdje si rano from 2007. He covered his old songs in an ethno-manner, and the new theme was "Aisha", a cover of Cheb Khaled's big hit. After that release, he retired from the scene.

Miladin Šobić – A singer and songwriter from Nikšić (Montenegro) who, through his work, fully belongs to the Sarajevo music scene. He took his first stage steps in Sarajevo as a student. He released his first album Ožiljak (The Scar) in 1981, followed by the album, Umjesto gluposti (Instead of stupidity), released a year later. At the beginning of 2013, he suffered a severe stroke and that kept him away from returning to the scene.

As a high school student, Jasna Gospić got the opportunity to play in the then very popular band Ambasadori (The Ambassadors). She stayed with them for two years and sang some major hits. After she left Ambasadori, she regularly performed at festivals. From 1980-1992, she released two solo albums. During the new millennium, she continued her notable career.

Rulet Bugi (Roulette Boogie) was one of the numerous bands that emerged in Sarajevo in the mid-eighties. Founded by singer and keyboardist Mustafa "Bugi" Nurak. Besides him, the band included Jasmin Osmanagić, Tomislav Milošević, Vladimir Janež and Željko Zuber. At the end of the summer of 1986, they released their only album, Ako te zora uhvati na pragu (If the dawn catches you on the doorstep). When the band broke up, Željko Zuber became the bassist of Hari Mata Hari, and Mustafa Nurak joined Merlin. He was killed during the war in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Dino Dervišhalidović wrote the song "Balada o Bugiju" ("The ballad of Bugi"), in his honor, which was sung by Muhamed Fazlagić Fazla.

Senad od Bosne/Senna M (Senad of Bosnia/Senna M) -- Senad Galijašević really started his career at the end of the 70s, when he formed the band Senad od Bosne (Senad of Bosnia). Before that, he had played in the band Vozdra (Hi), founded and led by Ranko Boban. He received attention with the first singles "Šal" ("Scarf") and "Bol" ("Pain"). He released five albums during the 80s. In the 90s, he joined the dominant dance sound in Croatia, where he performed under the name Senna M. At the beginning of the millennium, he recorded another album as Senad od Bosne.

Neda Ukraden – Born in Imotski (Croatia), she launched her career in the second half of the sixties. During the eighties, while working with Đorđe Novković, she became the most popular pop singer of Yugoslavia at the time. After that, her career was episodic.

Alma Ekmečić – A former Miss Bosnia and Herzegovina who then started singing and had a career as a pop singer. She provoked the public with sexy album covers, singing songs that became hits. She was born on November 8, 1957. She was not even seventeen when she became BH Miss in 1974, and was second runner-up to Miss Yugoslavia Jadranka Banjac. She released four albums.

Faruk Jažić was a musician and performer who devoted his entire life to the development of music in Bosnia and Herzegovina. He is better known as a producer, author, and instrumentalist rather than as a classic pop performer. Nevertheless, he tried his hand in that role and released the album Marina in 1982, with his versions of popular songs. During the war years, he wrote and produced a number of patriotic songs. He also founded the music publishing company Bosnaton. He died in Sarajevo on January 12, 2011.

Nemoguće vruće/Ritam srca (Impossibly Hot/Rhythm of the Heart) – This Zenica band predated Asmir Spahić's joining them, but only after his arrival did the band acquire the needed composition and vision. His songs, together with the characteristic vocals of Mladen Vidović, launched the band into popularity with their first album Ljubavni jadi mladog Werter (The Love Woes of Young Werther). The band, however, did not last long enough to release a second album. Asmir and Mladen left the band and started preparing a new album in 1990, under the name Ritam srca (Rhythm of the Heart). The album, titled Pod tvojim prozorom (Under Your Window), was released that same year. The rest of the band Nemoguće vruće reunited under the same name in 2012.
