Korijeni sarajevske rock scene 80tih
Roots of the 1980s Sarajevo Rock Scene

Takozvane "zlatne osamdesete" za sarajevsku rock scenu nisu došle niotkuda. Prethodne dvije decenije, stvarana je osnova da se takav procvat desi. Tokom 60tih i 70tih, postojala su tri načina na koje je novi zvuk dolazio do Sarajeva: Radio Luksemburg, festivali i cirkusi.

Radio Luxemburg je pomogao mladim rokerskim početnicima da nauče i reprodukuju najnovije svjetske hitove. Najuticajniji inostrani festival je, svakako, bio onaj u San Remu, sa kojeg su pjesme dolazile na naše prostore, gdje bi zaživjele među mladima. Cirkusi su, također, dolazili, najvećim brojem iz Italije. Muzika koja se emitovala u tim oazama "bijelog svijeta", bili su svjetski rock hitovi, često i u talijanskim prepjevima.

Prvi domaći autorski radovi (kombinovani i sa prepjevima) javljaju se početkom šezdesetih, sa imenima kao što su Sabahudin Kurt, Vedo Hamšić, Miralem Kruškić i Boško Orebović. Neke od tih pjesama ostale su i do danas, kao što je "Četiri mladića idu s Trebevića", u izvođenju Vede Hamšića.

Sljedeća faza je bila pojava "električara" ili pravih rock sastava, koji su svirali na električnim instrumentima. Najpoznatiji tokom šezdesetih, bili su Indexi. Pored njih, tu su bili Kodeksi i VIS Čičak, u kojima su, također, svirali muzičari, koji će kasnije biti sastavni dio nekih od najvećih grupa, ljudi poput Gorana Bregovića, Željka Bebeka, Ismete Dervoz, Milića Vukašinovića, Ranka Rihtmana, Ede Bogeljića, Mahmuta Paše Ferovića, Zorana Redžića... Bilo je još zanimljivih sastava, kao što su Lutalice, Sanjalice, Pauci, Vokinsi ili Beštije.

Krajem šezdesetih, pojavljuju se Kemal Monteno, Neda Ukraden, Pro arte i Ambasadori, ali oni će najveću popularnost i najznačajnije radove ipak ostaviti tokom sedamdesetih godina dvadesetog vijeka. U Ambasadorima, karijeru je započeo i slavni Zdravko Čolić, koji je nakon toga, nakratko prešao u beogradsku Korni grupu, a od 1972. godine ostvario zavidnu solo karijeru. Na sceni se pojavljuje grupa Kamen na kamen, te solisti poput Jadranke Stojaković, Mahira Paloša, Gorana Gerina, Hamdije Ćustovića, Ranka Bobana, Alage Gagića, Dine Kunića i Sabine Varešanović. Nešto kasnije, dolazi najveći sastav u Jugoslaviji svih vremena – Bijelo dugme, a onda slijede Teška industrija, Cod, Iver, Formula 4, Rock grupa.

Sredinom sedamdesetih pojavljuju se grupe Rezonansa, Vozdra, Čisti zrak, tuzlanski Terusi, dobojski Tok života i mostarski Most. Uz već etablirane soliste, pojavljuju se i Alma Ekmečić, Jasna Gospić, Narcis Vučina, Fadil Toskić, Seid Memić Vajta, Slobodan Samardžić i Goran Kovačević. Hard rock scena u drugoj polovini sedamdesetih daje sastave Vatreni poljubac i Divlje jagode, a tu su i predstavnici nove generacije grupe Zov, Senad od Bosne, Pauk, Leptir, Istinita priča i Korak.

Početkom osamdesetih godina, činilo se da sarajevska scena stagnira, ali to je bilo samo zatišje pred veliku eksploziju talenata koja će se desiti.

The so-called golden era of rock music in Sarajevo in the 1980s did not come from nowhere. The previous two decades served as an important foundation for the 1980s scene. In the 1960s and 1970s, there were three main ways that new sounds reached Sarajevo – Radio Luxembourg, festivals and circuses.

Radio Luxembourg provided a platform for young rock beginners to learn and reproduce the latest world hits. The most influential foreign festival was, without question, the San Remo Festival whose songs reached and lived on among youth. Circuses, coming mostly from Italy, also included music from the wider world, with mostly rock hits that were often adapted in Italian.

The first original domestic works (together with covers of other hits) appeared in the early 1960s, by performers such as Sabahudin Kurt, Vedo Hamšić, Miralem Kruškić and Boško Orebović. Some of these songs, such as "Četiri mladića idu s Trebevića" (Four Young Men Go from Trebević) performed by Vedo Hamšić, have survived to this day.

The next phase was the appearance of "electricians", or real rock bands playing electric instruments. During the 1960s, the most famous were Indexi. In addition to them, there were Kodeksi (The Codices) and VIS Čičak (The Thistles) consisting of some musicians who would later go on to become part of various famous bands, including Goran Bregović, Željko Bebek, Ismeta Dervoz, Milić Vukašinović, Ranko Rihtman, Ed Bogeljić, Mahmut Paša Ferović and Zoran Redžić. Additionally, there were other interesting bands such as Lutalice (The Wanderers), Sanjalice (The Dreamers), Pauci (The Spiders), Vokins and Beštije (The Beasts).

At the end of the 60s, Kemal Monteno, Neda Ukraden, Pro Arte and Ambasadori (The Ambassadors) began to appear, but they became popular and created their most significant works during the 1970s. The famous Zdravko Čolić started his career in Ambasadori. Soon afterwards he joined the Belgrade-based Korni Grupa (led by Kornelije Kovač), and in 1972 Čolić started an enviable solo career. On the scene appeared the band Kamen na kamen (Rock on Rock), and singers such as Jadranka Stojaković, Mahir Paloš, Goran Gerin, Hamdija Ćustović, Ranko Boban, Alaga Gagić, Dina Kunić and Sabina Varešanović. Very soon in this period, the biggest band of all time in Yugoslavia appeared – Bijelo Dugme (White Button), followed by Teška Industrija (Heavy Industry), Cod, Iver (The Splinter), Formula 4 and Rock Grupa.

In the mid-1970s, bands such as Rezonansa (Reason from Sarajevo - SA), Vozdra (Bye), Čisti Zrak (Pure Air), Terusi from Tuzla, Tok Života (The Stream of Life) from Doboj and Most (The Bridge) from Mostar appeared. In addition to already established singers, Alma Ekmečić, Jasna Gospić, Narcis Vučina, Fadil Toskić, Seid Memić Vajta, Slobodan Samardžić and Goran Kovačević also appeared. The hard rock scene in the second half of the 1970s included bands like Vatreni Poljubac (Fiery Kiss) and Divlje jagode (Wild Strawberries) and represen-tatives of a new generation of groups included Zov (The Call), Senad od Bosne (Senad of Bosnia), Pauk (Spider), Leptir (Butterfly), Istinita priča (The True Story) and Korak (The Step).

At the beginning of the 1980s, it seemed that the Sarajevo scene was stagnating, but it was only a lull before the great explosion of talent that would soon come.
