Opera Lu

Opera Lu – Grupa iz Sarajeva sa početka osamdesetih. U grupi su djelovali Boro Savić, Goran Marić i Nikša Bratoš. Objavili su 1980.godine jedan singl sa pjesmama "Televizori" i "Ujutro me sunce budi". Grupa nije bila dugog vijeka. Poslije razlaza Savić je osnovao grupu Gimpel luda, a zatim odselio za Australiju. Goran Marić je uzeo novoprimitivni alias Malkolm Muharem i djelovao kao menadžer grupama kao što su Elvis J. Kurtovich, Plavi orkestar i Nervozni poštar. Nikša Bratoš je prošao kroz sastave Bonton Baya, Valentino i Crvena jabuka da bi postao jedan od najcjenjenijih producenata u regiji.

Radio

Sarajevska grupa Radio imala je izuzetno zanimljivu postavu iz koje su svi kasnije ostvarili uspješne karijere. Pjevala je Negra Bulbulija, koja će se nešto kasnije udati za Seju Bajraktarevića i sa njim imati grupu Negra. Gitare je svirao Neven Đokić i on će kasnije osnovati grupu Maratonci. Bas gitarista je bio Mirza Hajrić, a on će svirati poslije u Vatrenom poljupcu. Damir Misirlić je svirao klavijature i nakon grupe Radio osnovaće grupu Bonton Baya, a nakon toga svirati u grupi Amilla. Dubravko Smolčić je bio bubnjar grupe Radio. Objavili su svoj jedini album Rampapila 1981.godine.

Bonton Baja

Bonton Baya – U grupi su nastupali Ademir Volić i Nikša Bratoš koji će kasnije otići u Valentino pa u mnoge druge sarajevske sastave. Tu su bili još pjevač Nenad Štrbac, te Damir Misirlić i Zlatan Cico. Izlazak njihovog debi albuma ELPI očekivao se sa dosta nestrpljenja, ali kada se konačno pojavila 1983. godine nakon svega nekoliko dana iz nepoznatih razloga skoro cijeli tiraž je povučen iz prodaje. Danas je pravi raritet. Najpoznatije pjesme sa albuma su "Nipon elektronik" i "Sarajevo, Texas, Nashville, Tennessee" koja je u country maniru i totalno je odudarala od osnovne koncepcije grupe i bila je bliža "novom primitivizmu". Članovi grupe su ubrzo otišli svaki na svoju stranu i prestali su sa radom.

Kongres

Kongres – Jedna od rijetkih grupa koja je nastala početkom osamdesetih u Sarajevu, a da nije pripadala "novom primitivizmu". Grupu su 1982. godine formirali Mahir Purivatra, Aljoša Buha, Adam Subašić, Emir Cerić i Jadranko Džihan. Godina njihovog formiranja bila je godina kongresa SKJ i to ih je potaklo da uzmu to ime. Kroz grupu su još prošli Edo Gradinčić, Nebojša Leković i Bata Dobrijević. U početku nastupaju zajedno sa predstavnicima "novog primitivizma", ali vremenom postaje jasno da ta kombinacija baš i ne funkcioniše. Već na njihovom prvom i jedinom albumu Zarjavele trobente iz 1984. godine pokazalo se da su stvaraoci drugačijeg senzibiliteta.

Naslovna pjesma je otpjevana na slovenačkom, u njoj je gostovao Zoran Predin iz grupe Lačni Franz. Veza sa Slovenijom prisutna je jer je Aljoša Buha po majci bio Slovenac. I pjesma Zabava sa albuma je na slovenačkom. Zbog pomalo depresivnih i mračnih tekstova smatraju ih "darkerima prije darkera". Drugi album nisu snimili jer je u grupi došlo do podjela. Aljoša Buha je 1985. godine prešao u Crvenu jabuku, a godinu kasnije je poginuo u saobraćajnoj nesreći.

Sport

Sport – Sarajevski rock sastav iz ranih sedamdesetih. Vokalna solistica u grupi je bila Nada Lazić, a glavni autor Damir Starčević. Za Diskoton su 1980.godine objavili jedan singl sa pjesmama "Zeka" i "Ples". Njihov singl može se smatrati prvom novovalnom pločom u Sarajevu. Naravno, uz singl grupe "Opera Lu".

Digi

Digi – Sastav koji je nakon prestanka rada grupe COD formirao Enes Bajramović. Bio je to uglavnom njegov solo projekat nastao pod uticajem "novog vala". Objavili su jedan album Digi 1982.godine. Producent je bio Nebojša Dimitrijević, a na albumu je gostovao kao multiinstrumentalista i Nikša Bratoš.

Garri Garrincha

Garri Garrincha – Rock grupa koja se pojavila u Sarajevu sredinom osamdesetih godina dvadesetog vijeka. U grupi su svirali i pjevali Miško Stanišić (klavijature), Dino Muzur, Nenad Štrbac (vokal), Samir Avdagić, Saša Strunjaš (gitare) i bračni par Milica i Miodrag Necić. Objavili su jedan album sa hitom "Negacija".

Rusija

Rusija (Russia) – Grupu je krajem 1987.godine okupio bubnjar Mario Vasojević. Pjevao je Darko Jelisić koji je već radio sa grupom Garri Garrincha, a kasnije će pjevati u grupi Major. Tu su još bili Adnan Media i Denis Jogunčić. Ime grupi su uzeli zbog tada aktuelnih previranja u Sovjetskom Savezi u vezi sa perestrojkom. U skladu sa tim su i izabrali ime za prvi i jedini album – Glasnost.

Opera Lu was a Sarajevo band from the beginning of the 1980s. Boro Savić, Goran Marić and Nikša Bratoš were members of the band. In 1980, they released a single with the songs "Televizori" ("The Televisions") and "Ujutro me sunce budi" ("The Sun Wakes me up in the Morning"). The band did not last long. After the split, Savić founded the group Gimpel luda ("The Gimpel Fool"), and then moved to Australia. Goran Marić took the new primitive alias Malkolm Muharem and acted as a manager for bands such as Elvis J. Kurtovich, Plavi Orkestar (Blue Orchestra) and Nervozni poštar (The Nervous Postman). Nikša Bratoš went through the bands Bonton Baya, Valentino and Crvena jabuka (Red Apple) to become one of the most respected producers in the region.

Radio (Sarajevo band) had an extremely interesting line-up from which all of the performers built successful careers later. The vocalist was Negra Bulbulija, who would later marry Sejo Bajraktarević, and together with him form the band Negra. Neven Đokić played guitar; he would later form the band Maratonci (The Marathon Runners). Mirza Hajrić, the bassist, would later play in Vatreni poljubac (Fiery Kiss). Keyboardist Damir Misirlić would form the band Bonton Baya after Radio, and after that, he played in the band Amilla. Dubravko Smolčić was the drummer. They released only one album, titled Rampapila in 1981.

The band Bonton Baya was composed of Ademir Volić and Nikša Bratoš who later moved to Valentino, and later to many other Sarajevo bands. Singer Nenad Štrbac, as well as Damir Misirlić, and Zlatan Cico used to be band members too. The release of their debut album ELPI was eagerly awaited, but when it finally appeared in 1983, almost all copies were withdrawn from shops within just a few days for unspecified reasons. Nowadays, this record is a rare find. The best-known songs from the album are "Nipon elektronik" and "Sarajevo, Texas, Nashville, Tennessee" recorded in a country style and totally at odds with the elementary concept of the band and much closer to the concept of "new primitivism". Soon after, band members parted ways and they ceased to collaborate.

Kongres was one of the few main bands formed in the early eighties that did not fall within the concept of new primitivism. The band was formed in 1982 by Mahir Purivatra, Aljoša Buha, Adam Subašić, Emir Cerić, and Jadranko Džihan. The year of their formation coincided with the congress of the Communist League of Yugoslavia, which is what inspired them to acquire their name. Edo Gradinčić, Nebojša Leković, and Bata Dobrijević were also band members at various times. In the beginning, they used to share the stage with representatives of the new primitivism, but with time it became evident that this combination didn't really work. Indeed, their first and only album Zarjavele trobente (Rusty Trumpets) from 1984 showed their different creative approach.

The title track of the song was sung in Slovene, featuring Zoran Predin of Lačni Franz (Hungry Franz). The connection with Slovenia stemmed from the fact that Aljoša Buha's mother was Slovene. The song Zabava (Fun) from the same album was also in Slovene. Owing to their somewhat depressing and dark lyrics, they were considered forerunners of goth. They never recorded a second album because of the subsequent rifts among the band members. Aljoša Buha moved to Crvena jabuka (Red Apple) in 1985, and a year later he lost his life in a car crash.

Sport was a Sarajevo rock band from the early 1970s. The vocal soloist in the group was Nada Lazić, and the main author Damir Starčević. In 1980, they released a single for Diskoton with songs "Zeka" ("The Rabbit") and "Ples" ("The Dance"). Their single can be considered the first new wave record in Sarajevo together with the single of the band Opera Lu.

Digi was a band formed by Enes Bajramović after the band COD ceased to exist. It was mainly his solo project created under the influence of the "new wave". They released one album, Digi, in 1982. The producer and guest on the record was Nebojša Dimitrijević, as well as Nikša Bratoš, who played multiple instruments.

Garri Garrincha was a rock band that appeared in Sarajevo in the mid-80s. Miško Stanišić (keyboards), Dino Muzur, Nenad Štrbac (vocals), Samir Avdagić, Saša Strunjaš (guitar) and the married couple Milica and Miodrag Necić played and sang in the band. They released one album with the hit song "Negacija" ("Negation").

Rusija (Russia) -The band Rusija was brought together at the end of 1987, by the drummer Mario Vasojević. The singer was Darko Jelisić, who had previously worked with the band Garri Garrincha, and would later sing in the band Major. In addition, there were Adnan Media and Denis Jogunčić. They picked the band name due to that time of turmoil in the Soviet Union, during the time of perestroika. Accordingly, they chose the title Glasnost (Openness/Transparency) for their first and only album.
